A nursing brassiere retrofit garment having a front upper portion that may be retrofitted to a standard nursing bra by detachably affixing connectors to fold-down cup cover flaps of the nursing bra to provide a combined garment. The combination can be worn beneath any front-opening or pull-over blouse or shirt or worn as an outer garment. The nursing brassiere retrofit garment includes a skirt so that, when combined with the nursing bra, the combination enables a woman to discreetly breastfeed an infant maintaining her lower torso covered. Thus, a woman desiring to nurse her child need only unhook one of the fold-down cup cover flaps, and lower both the flap and a portion of the attached retrofit garment to access a breast. When the child has finishing nursing, the woman raises the flap and reattaches it along with the attached retrofit garment to the hook at the top of the bra cup.
